WJA Jewelry Night Out welcomes designers, retailers, marketers, appraisers, salespeople, manufacturers, and members of the media and jewelry and watch industry organizations to its annual get-together.

For current and prospective members not close enough to attend a live event, there are still a variety of activities and discounts available during WJA's Membership Month, including a dues discount, a mentorship and leadership development program, and member-to-member online community called WJA Connect, which is an active platform for members to collaborate, share knowledge, and build relationships. "As we celebrate growing recognition of women's achievements in the jewelry industry, our annual Jewelry Night Out ensures that all of our members get a chance to network," says WJA President Jenny Luker. "It's a collective celebration that inspires camaraderie and builds excitement in our chapters."

"WJA Membership is one of the most important gifts you can give your jewelry industry career," says Clare Ullman, Membership Chair. "From the networking at Jewelry Night Out and at a variety of trade shows, access to our scholarship and grant opportunities, mentorship and leadership development, and WJA Connect, it's worth the price of admission."

WJA also encourages attendees to use the hashtag #WJAJewelryNightOut during the evening to connect events nationwide on social sites.

Jewelry Night Out's lead sponsors are Kay Jewelers, Zales, Piercing Pagoda, and Jared, retail brands of Signet Jewelers. Events are sponsored locally by companies in each chapter area -- see individual events for local sponsor details.
